A recent study by the consumer watchdog group CUB, finds that Illinois phone customers A | A | A are overpaying by about $1.5 billion a year. So CUB is travelling our state showing us how to avoid paying too much for phone service.

CUB representatives were in Rockford today, boasting that they can help us cut our local and long distance bills by an average of $200 a year.

Those who attended were encouraged to bring their phone bills along, so CUB leaders could show them exactly where they could save. Here's one example, eliminate a costly and optional service from AT&T called Line-Backer.

CUB also suggests its Consumer's Choice local calling plans that ATt&T has been forced to offer under a legal settlement.

Cub says it's designed to save most of us money.
